Guest Speaker: George Nixon, "Mammals of the Americas"

We all have a basic understanding of mammals, as it is the class to which humans belong. We usually encounter the common ones like deer and squirrels. If we are out at night, raccoons, skunks, and opossums may be seen. The majority of mammals are secretive and often go undetected. They have filled every niche available from herbivores to carnivores and live in all habitats from forests and deserts, from tropical rainforests to polar regions, and in the water and air. In this program we will examine the characteristics of each group of mammals to gain a better appreciation.

George Nixon is a long time officer and member of the Montclair Bird Club, and is a retired teacher. He has traveled widely throughout the United States, Central and South America studying and photographing wildlife, including birds, insects, amphibians and reptiles. He is a past president of the Urner Ornithological Society and former member of the New Jersey Records Committee for birds.

SILENT AUCTION

Donations Needed

In following with the club tradition of holding a silent auction at our annual dinner, we need your new or gently used items for auction donations: popular items in the past have included plants, birdhouses, bird and other nature books, home décor, and artwork. All donations are welcome and appreciated. You can bring your items to the dinner at 5:45pm, (the dinner officially starts at 6pm) for a drop-off, or if you like, you can also stay and help arrange and price the items. Funds raised will be donated to a local conservation project that is voted on by the membership. Thank you for all of your help!
